DROWNING ACCIDENTAL, BUREAU FOREMAN POLICE NOW BELIEVE

Investigation today of the circumstances surrounding the death of George W. Leigh, forty-five years of age, of Baltimore, in the June 26 American Ice Company, Georgetown, tended to indicate that he fell into the water Thursday night or early Friday morning. The swollen and discolored body is still at the morgue, but probably will be claimed this afternoon or tomorrow, as the police are in communication with his relatives.

The veil of mystery enveloping the case was lifted by Joseph B. Ames, of Roslyn, Va., yesterday afternoon, when he informed the police that Leigh had started from home to walk along the tow path of the canal, for the purpose of keeping an engagement. Ames expressed the belief that Leigh toppled into the swiftly running canal and was carried down into the hump of the ice works during the hours of darkness.

J. A. Bowman, of 1300 Thirteenth street, found the body floating on the surface of the water at Potomac and Grace streets, Georgetown, and hauled it ashore. Police of the Seventh precinct were informed. They examined the body, but no marks of violence were found on it. Remorse to the morgue the body was searched, and by means of papers and cards in the pockets of the coat it was established that the dead man was Leigh.

Coroner Nevitt will view the remains this afternoon and will likely give a certificate of accidental drowning.

Right Sized New Straw Dropped in Flight From Woman.

Although a fair exchange is no robbery, Detective Herman believes there should be a meeting of minds regarding the swap. Hence his search for the young man who stole a pair of James Chaconas' shoes from the latter's bedroom at 234 Third street northwest, this morning and left a pair of new ones instead.

It is believed the intruder had designs on Chaconas' money, but he was frightened off by a woman living in the house. Shortly before daybreak the stranger removed his creaking tan Oxford shoes with wide silk laces and put them behind a door on the second floor of the house. The woman heard the noise, but remained still because she thought it was a cat.

Making his way into Chaconas' room the uninvited visitor quietly drew on James' new patent leather footgear and was making a detour of the place when discovered in the hall. As he ran toward the head of the steps the woman grappled with him, but he wrenched himself free and fled. His tan straw hat, which strangely enough is just Chaconas' size, was found on the front steps.

The attempted robbery was reported to Inspector Boardman, who detailed Detective Herman to make an investigation.

Seven-Eleven's Combine Is "Hoodoo" for "Sports"

Thirteens and Twenty-threes Enter, Too, and Judge Mills in Police Court Does the Rest for Gaming.

Sevens, elevens, thirteens, and twenty-threes combined to accomplish the downfall of a number of Washington's sporting fraternity.

As an apparent result of this combination, two men, both colored, were fined today for tempting fortune by shooting craps; two white men forfeited $25, and a number of "colored sports" were still waiting to be tried in Judge Mills' Court.

A hoodoo in the form of sevens and elevens is responsible for a sentence of $50 or three months, which was imposed on John Butler, colored. Johnson ran a game at 411 Navy place, in which eleven men took part. They were captured by the officers at 11 o'clock, and $7 was discovered in the bank.

Stewart Marshall, who is six feet seven inches tall, had his case continued until Tuesday through his lawyer. A hoodoo pursued him also. There were thirteen men in his game and $15 in the pot. The house number was 22.

James Winn, colored, was fined $20 or sixty days for running a crap game in Anacostia, and James Frenz and Henry Fearing both forfeited $25.

Thomas Lacy, colored, who works in a Fifteenth street hotel, demanded a jury trial in the case of shooting craps alleged against him.

COWS CONDEMNED IN MILK TEST

Forty Out of Ninety Fail to Pass Tuberculin Inquiry.

That special appropriation to stamp out tuberculosis among the cattle of the District should be granted by Congress was well exemplified this morning at a local abattoir, when forty cows of a herd of ninety were killed, after responding to a tuberculin test by a private veterinary at the request of the owner of the herd.

Apparently in perfect physical condition, showing not the slightest signs of disease, the cows were submitted to the test last week by a prominent dairy man, who intends to sell certified milk to his customers. The cattle were inoculated and a reaction was immediately noted, as their fever increased greatly. The test was voluntary on the part of the dealer, who, according to veterinarians, realizes the need of the tuberculin test.

The enormous percentage of apparently healthy cows that were infected, shows the need of a law making the tuberculin test compulsory for all dairy cattle, and at the coming session of Congress a special appropriation and laws to make the tuberculin test compulsory will be asked for.

In order to sell certified milk, it is necessary that the cattle receive the tuberculin test. The only one that will reveal the true physical condition of the cow.

Much of the sickness in the District, according to the health officials, can be attributed to the laxity of physicians in allowing patients to use milk from unclean dairies where untested cows are kept.

TEN FOLD CIRCULARS; ASK KEMP'S ARREST

Ten men, one from each of the police precincts, were taken from the street today and detailed at Police Headquarters to fold circulars describing J. Arthur Kemp, the missing police clerk. Each reported at 8 o'clock this morning and will work until 6 o'clock this evening. The policemen set behind stacks of circulars which towered high above their heads, and it looks as if many weeks will be consumed in simply folding the descriptive circulars to one-third their original size.

All the circulars are folded to envelope size the policemen will spend an equally long time addressing them to the points designated by Major Sylvester.

Secretary of War Taft has been compelled to modify somewhat the itinerary for his Western speechmaking trip. He will not go to Lincoln, Neb. This is not because of the presence there of one William Jennings Bryan—a conclusion to which some thoughtless persons might jump. But the date set by the War Department is too late for the Secretary to accept.

The Secretary has changed his Kentucky speech from Louisville to Lexington on the afternoon of August 22.
